Practicing for almost 15 years, Dedra has extensive experience in employment-related issues and professional liability matters. She represents employers at all stages of employment matters, from pre-incident policy preparation to the investigation and defense of charges filed with administrative agencies to the litigation phase. She represents lawyers, accountants, and realtors, along with a variety of other professionals.

With a background as an administrative law judge, Dedra now focuses her practice in the areas of employment law, premises and retail liability, mass transit and professional liability matters.

In her time away from the office, Dedra enjoys painting and furniture restoration.
