

Colleen M. Healy retired as a partner of the firm effective November 30, 2019, but she continues her affiliation with CCM in an of counsel capacity. Ms. Healy worked with a number of privately owned businesses, financial institutions, real estate owners, landlords, tenants, developers and builders, as well as individuals in business.

She represented clients on merger and acquisition opportunities, buy-sell arrangements, employment issues, manufacturing, distribution and service agreements, trade secret and proprietary information agreements and other general corporate representation.

Ms. Healy represented major financial institutions and local banks in connection with their loan documentation needs.

She also provided estate planning and business succession planning for individuals and owners of privately held businesses.
