About Fernando Romero

Fernando “Ski” Romero is a New York based graffiti muralist and overall artist who was born in Astoria, Queens. He attended Parsons School of design where he earned his degree in Marketing/Advertising communication.

Background:

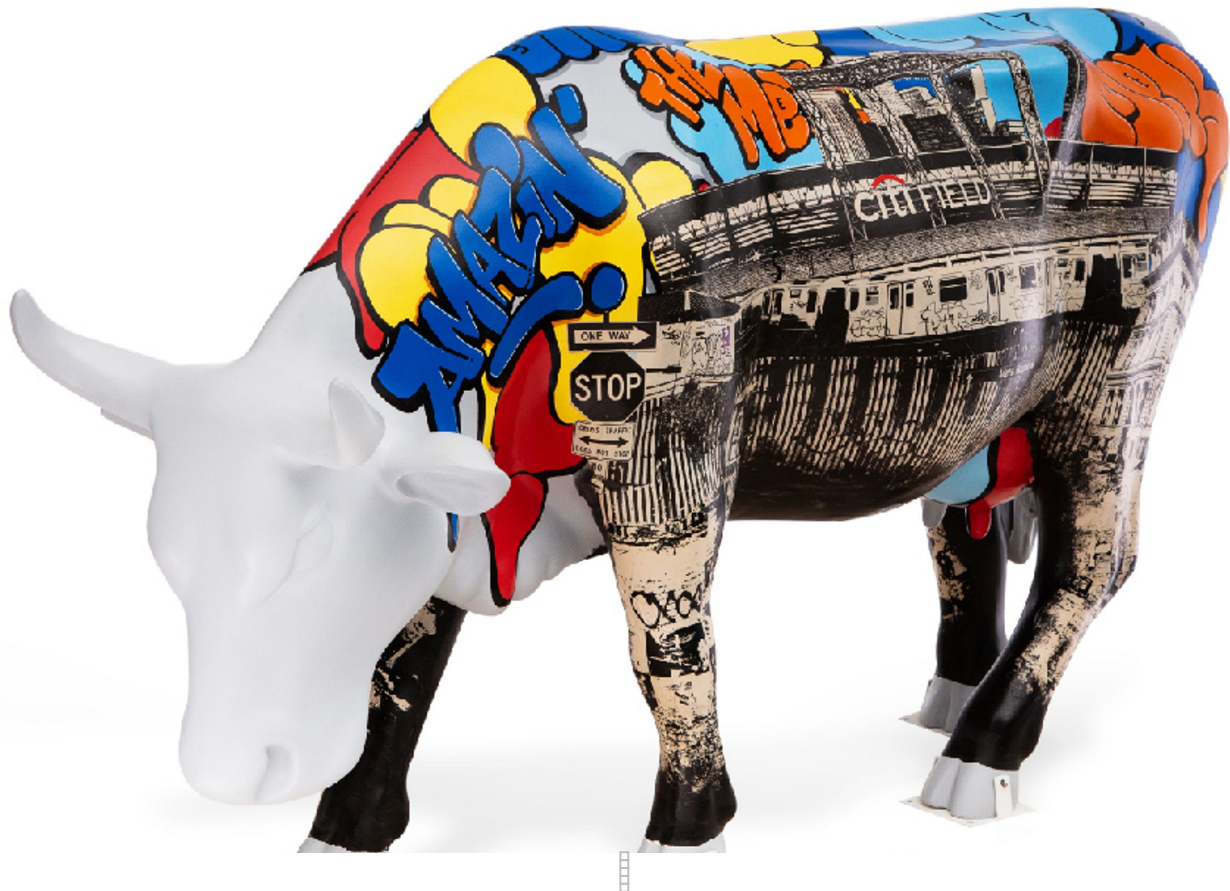

Romero’s career began in 1990 painting trains in New York and quickly graduating to trucks and streets once the crackdown started. New York was the mecca of graffiti, and the birthplace of a special culture which many knew little about. It started with the art of repetition, and quickly expanded to something larger than life. He sold his art in the streets of Soho New York from 2005 to 2009, which is where he learned different techniques and was able to put his marketing education to the test.
