

Technology Transfer and IP Licensing

One of the most challenging aspects of intellectual property assets is deciding what to do once you acquire them. Buying, selling, improving, or holding in partnerships or joint ventures are but a few of the many options IP holders face in their path to commercialization and success. Tuggle Duggins attorneys are intimately familiar with every facet of this process and are well-versed in advising clients. From reviewing and drafting Non-Disclosure Agreements for potential suitors to negotiating licensing terms and royalty amounts to drafting and recording assignment documents to counseling parties on compliance, or lack thereof, with previously executed agreements, our attorneys can guide you every step of the way.
