

Litigation & Dispute Resolution

When our clients find themselves in a dispute, they turn to Tuggle Duggins' deep bench of experienced litigators to secure successful outcomes in their cases. Our firm represents businesses of all sizes across numerous industries in disputes in North Carolina, around the United States, and abroad. Tuggle Duggins' litigators have substantial experience before state and federal courts, state and federal governmental agencies, administrative tribunals and domestic and international arbitration panels.

Our litigation team knows that every dispute is different, and we approach each case with the care and attention necessary to secure the best results for our clients. Whether it is a complex trade secrets case involving substantial e-discovery or an employment dispute before the EEOC, our litigators tailor our services to the specific facts and circumstances for each case. At Tuggle Duggins, we believe that litigation is an interactive process between clients and attorneys, and we counsel our clients as to the most effective use of their time and resources, and negotiate positive settlements where possible. While our attorneys are skilled at resolving conflicts outside a courtroom or through arbitration, Tuggle Duggins believes in approaching every dispute with a willingness to take our client's case to trial if needed in order to achieve the best results.

From employment law to trade secrets to banking and real estate litigation, our litigation team takes on a wide variety of cases across countless industries while staying at the forefront of new technological developments in the field of litigation.
