Labor and employment attorney Ken Gray will speak at this year's CFMA Carolina Construction Conference, sponsored in part by Ward and Smith.

He is one of 13 speakers presenting over the two-day event, which starts on October 21 at the Grandover Resort & Conference Center in Greensboro.

Ken's session is an overview of emerging employment issues affecting construction companies. Attendees will learn how to deal with COVID-related personnel matters, new independent contractor rules, employment-based training obligations, and new wage and hour regulations from the U.S. Department of Labor.

Other topics covered during the annual Conference include ethics, process changes and effective deployment of technology, a tax update, and much more. You can view the full agenda here.

The CFMA Carolinas Construction Conference is designed for CFOs, controllers, and financial managers in the construction industry; construction CPAs; banking and financial service professionals; insurance professionals; surety underwriters; attorneys; and other construction industry specialists.

The advance deadline to register is October 7. Tickets prices do vary for members and nonmembers. Sign-up today!
