

Ward and Smith, P.A. Adds Raleigh and Wilmington Attorneys

October 5, 2017

Attorneys Emily Massey, James Todd, and Thomas Wolff recently joined Ward and Smith, P.A. The additions reflect the firm's continued growth in the Raleigh and Wilmington markets and increased demand for sophisticated legal services.

Emily Massey will focus her practice on labor and employment law. She is based in the firm's Raleigh office. She received her J.D., magna cum laude, from Campbell University School of Law in 2017. Her law school activities included serving as Editor in Chief of the Campbell Law Review and Campbell Law Moot Court Team. Prior to attending law school, she was a Senior Account Executive at Capstrat in Raleigh, NC.

James Todd will focus his practice on real estate law. He received his J.D., summa cum laude, from Campbell University School of Law in 2017. While in law school, Todd was an extern with the North Carolina Supreme Court and the United States Attorney's Office in Eastern North Carolina. He is based in the firm's Wilmington office.

Thomas Wolff will focus his practice on creditors' rights and business law. He has been a North Carolina State Bar Certified Paralegal since 2009 in the firm's Creditors' Rights practice. He regularly handles matters concerning complex bankruptcy cases as well as state and federal court litigation. Wolff also has experience overseeing cases throughout the appellate process, including filings with the North Carolina Supreme Court and 4th Circuit Court of Appeals. Wolff received his J.D. from North Carolina Central University School of Law. He was valedictorian of his class and served as the Articles Editor and Staff Editor of the North Carolina Central Law Review. He is based in the Raleigh office.