Cassandra J. Creekman

Attorney

Bio

Cassy's practice focuses on regulatory and compliance matters, including antitrust, export controls and sanctions, anticorruption, and foreign investment issues. Cassy began her legal practice in New York, working on cross-border transactions and arbitration for a UK-based law firm. She first joined Wyrick Robbins in 2007, practicing in the firm's Emerging Companies and Mergers & Acquisitions groups. After nearly 8 years as in-house compliance counsel for a multinational data analytics company, she returned to Wyrick Robbins in 2021.

Cassy graduated magna cum laude from Duke University with a B.A. in Economics and Comparative Area Studies and received her J.D. from New York University, where she served as Articles and Notes Editor for the Journal of International Law and Politics.
