Jeff.Linder@youngmoorelaw.com

Jeff is an experienced workers' compensation litigator serving the healthcare, hospitality and retail, manufacturing, professional services, and transportation industries among others. Jeff represents employers, third-party administrators and insurers throughout all stages of litigation, including appeals and subrogation lien recovery.

Jeff also advises employers on matters involving employment discrimination and harassment, employee discipline and termination, workplace safety and OSHA violations, and personnel policies and procedures. With over 25 years of experience, Jeff's philosophy is to provide the highest quality client services while seeking to deliver the most satisfactory results in the most efficient manner available.

Jeff graduated with honors from the University of North Carolina School of Law in 1995 and joined the firm that same year. He is a shareholder, a former member of the firm management committee, and co-leader of his litigation team. Jeff has an AV Peer Review Rating from Martindale-Hubbell and is recognized in The Best Lawyers in America® in Workers' Compensation Law-Employers (2019-2024).

In his spare time, Jeff is a passionate golfer, avid reader of historical novels and an enthusiastic Tar Heel sports fan. He and his wife, Kathleen, and their two sons live in Raleigh.

Milestones

- Successfully defended an employer from an employee's allegation that his lung cancer was caused by low level gamma radiation exposure during his employment.
- Negotiated a favorable settlement on behalf of a Raleigh company alleged to have interfered with the contract of a competitor's employee, and on behalf of the newly hired employee in defense of a claim for breach of a Non-Compete Agreement. Settlement allowed the company to continue to enjoy the benefits of the new employee's services while also obtaining a release of any liability for the alleged breaches.
- Obtained a temporary restraining order in a matter of extreme urgency to protect confidential trade secrets when management-level employees of a Raleigh company left to set up a competing business. Subsequently, the parties agreed to a period of non-competition and the return of sensitive information including the cleansing of data storage devices, saving the company from competition by people previously entrusted with its well-being.
- Successfully defended a production worker's claim for a cumulative trauma disorder, alleged to be an occupational disease under the Workers' Compensation Act.
- Successfully defended, in Guilford County Superior Court, an attempt to extinguish a workers' compensation lien on an employee's settlement from a third-party tortfeasor, thereby reducing workers' compensation costs for the employer.
